Citizen Advocates works to make a difference in the lives of people, like the group in the picture below, by creating relationships that see beyond disabilities. Advocates are people, (individuals and groups) who are willing to take a risk and begin a relationship with someone new that is sometimes not included in our community. We work with individuals of all ages, facilitating peer mentor programs in schools, a respite program for families and we are working towards creating much needed community groups for adults with disabilities.

We could not continue our work to make a positive difference in the lives of those with disabilities without the strong support of community members like you.

Thank you,

Jessica Frederick
Executive Director
